

MEDICAID BENEFITS

Medicaid is a joint state-federal program to provide health care to persons who qualify under the program guidelines. In Wisconsin, Medicaid covers a wide variety of medical services, including most services also covered by Medicare.

Persons can be eligible for both Medicare and Medicaid programs. They are also known as “dual-eligibles or dual-entities.” For many dual entities, Medicaid is used to cover the premiums, co-insurance and deductibles from the Medicare program, although Medicaid is by law the payor of last resort to nearly all health insurance plans including Medicare.

Persons who wish to know about Medicaid benefits should contact the Department of Human Services in their community. Persons also can contact Dove Healthcare or Wisconsin Health’s Social Service Department or Business Office for additional information.
